MIDNIGHT GENERATION

MIDNIGHT GENERATION

Midnight Generation is a record-retro-pop band from northern Mexico. During the last two years, they have had shows in some of the most recognized festivals in Mexico and have managed to position themselves as one of the most important emerging bands in the country. The band from Chihuahua, has achieved international popularity by collaborating with artists such as Leron Thomas, Femme, Slove and Legs, launching recording material with the French recording label Alter K.

The band has released two EP's with six songs each, including their hit "Young Girl", which was placed at #1 on Spotify's Mexico Viral Songs. Midnight Generation has licensed songs for Sony Music, Cartier, What For Shoes, as well as opened shows for Plastilina Mosh, Chromeo, Sticky Fingers and Camilo Septimo across USA and Mexico.

During 2020, Midnight Generation has released new music such as "Together" and "No Digas Nada", a collaboration with Robot, a Mexican rapper. Their next release is "Impala 1985", which will also be included on their upcoming debut album, "Odyssey", which released on September 2020. "Odyssey" is a blend of their electronic music taste, using a lot of synthesizers with a funky style of mixing which surely will make all people dance and have a great experience.
